Our request:

Atradius IT has for many years relied on service providers for the delivery of application development services. We insourced part of our development teams and transition currently from fully relying on external partners for our IT development and maintenance, into ensuring core skills through internal staff and adopting an agile delivery approach.

This transformation requires us to focus on delivering a superior developer experience and a strong software development platform that enables our engineers to deliver value to customers.

We are seeking a Senior Engineer to join our team and play a lead role in maintaining and improving our software delivery platform, which includes capabilities to support secure software development, build and release automation, test automation, application monitoring and feature flag management for our cloud-hosted and on-premise applications.

If you are service-minded and passionate about delivering first-class solutions that enable software delivery, we would love to hear from you.
